Highway Men to Act as Deputies to Stop Speeding

As the result of new legislation in Wisconsin, the Rock county board will be requested by state and county road authorities to appoint from 10 to 12 of the regular county highway force as deputy sheriffs, empowered to enforce traffic regulations. Under the law the sheriff is empowered to appoint the road deputies "designated by the county highway committee."

The power to revoke the powers of the deputies at any time is left with both the sheriff and the county highway committee.

"Appointments of the road workers as deputies will give some relief," declared Commissioner C. E. Moore. "There is no efficient supervision of the highway traffic, consequently it is getting more and more dangerous to travel on the trunk lines and highways. I believe a system of state road police would be the most effective way, but making road patrolmen deputies will help regulate and slow down traffic on the concrete roads."

The Unenviable Position of Greece.

No matter how much we may feel that Italy has been ruthless in her demands on Greece, and more ruthless in her denial of the right of the league of nations of which both are members, to settle the affair of the assassination of the Italian envoy, the responsibility of Greece in the present situation is also to be considered. When Greece attacked Turkey and started the campaign in Asia Minor back of Smyrna, Italy protested but no attention was paid by the Geneva council. Out of that tragic campaign came the execution of Greek statesmen and generals who had participated in the operation of that disastrous war. The map of Southeast Europe was ultimately changed, Turkey came into its old position on the Bosphorus, Britain and France and Italy looked with complacency on the pinching of Greece in the Balkan nutcracker, and the league of nations went on attending to minor details, fiddling while Athens burned, and Greece paid the penalty for ambition.
Italy got much from the world war but has never been satisfied. Italy wants the domination of the Mediterranean. Greece stands in her way. Before entering the war on the side of the allies Italy looked about—as did Greece also —to see where the best chances lay and where there was the most loot to be obtained. Greece was in a majority pro-German so far as the royal house was concerned, but the people saw Turkey as an ally of Germany and Bulgaria also, and were certain that their road was away from these ancient enemies. So Venezuela went with the allies. So Italy looking for Fiume and Dalmatia, and the Trentino, attached herself to the allies.

Peoples and their wishes counted for naught.
Italy has repeatedly said that she was outplayed in the diplomatic game at Versailles. Fiume was one stake only. The Dodecanese islands, greater sphere in Africa along the Mediterranean, more islands in the Aegean archipelago and greed for territory incited her. In the hands of a ruthless and iron-handed man, the Italian Bismarck of the century, the opportunity came to press the neck of Greece and Italy has so acted.

Into this seething pot of intrigue, ambition and greed, we have men and women in the United States who want us to step with wide-open eyes and careless feet. We are standing here as we have a right to stand, waiting for the league of nations to give one evidence of its being worth while as a world chief of police. This league is confronted with the fact that to make peace it must order war—a paradoxical and untenable position, an example of the reductio ad absurdum, perfect and complete—the one emphatic reason why we are not in the league. Once the league backs down and refuses to go ahead with war against Italy then whatever fear there may be of interference in proceeding with her program against Greece, will have disappeared and Greece must either fight or submit to Italian demands.

One might as well read the Golden Rule to a cage of lions as to carry the message to either Greece or Italy. Greece had her day of ambition and greed in Turkey; Italy is taking her holiday plunge into the same sea of international buccaneering in Greece.

With a lot of people, home is where the toe box is.

The Cost of Government.

A few days ago the Gazette printed the figures on the cost of government of Wisconsin compiled by the census bureau, showing the staggering increase in the state in eight years. But Wisconsin is not alone in the increase in taxation in the period. Minnesota paid $7.54 per capita tax in 1915, $8.33 in 1918 and $17.06 in 1922. The legislature of Minnesota, like that of Wisconsin has been largely composed of farmers and one would naturally think taxation would be reduced. Wisconsin's aggregate government cost for 1915 was $6.41 per capita and in 1922 had grown to $12.92.
The greatest increase has been in Michigan where the per capita cost of government has jumped from $5.66 to $24.07 in the eight years.
The other states showing increases are Rhode Island, Illinois where the per capita cost is only $7.71, Kentucky and New Jersey. Cost of government in fifty cities shows astonishing increase and when added to state and federal taxes the cost of government is over $100 per person in many localities.

The temptation of the tax exempt security has become a positive menace. It matters not how many arguments are made in favor of these troublesome bonds, the fact remains plain that some thousands of millions of dollars escape taxation by this type of investment. The tax exempt security is responsible with its favorable market, for most of the increase in other forms of taxation.

PREVENTING SUICIDES

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New York.—We are now at the height of the suicide season. A daily average of 40 people do away with themselves in this country all the year round. But the number is not evenly distributed. In the gloomy months of winter there are fewer suicides, while now, when the world is sunny and colorful and people are going on vacations and having a good time, the toll mounts appallingly.

The reason is not difficult to explain. It is the very cheerfulness of summer that does it. The fact that so many are enjoying life strikes the depressed person with all the force of a sharp contrast. He is not having a good time because of poverty or trouble of some sort. He wants to get away from the insistent gaiety in which he can not share.

No one knows exactly how many suicides occur in a year because reports on vital statistics are not complete. Only estimates, based on the registration area, can be made, and these estimates which are probably low give the figure as about 15,000.

Aside from the fact that a suicide usually results in a brief news item in the papers, almost no attention is paid to these occurrences. They are taken by the public as a matter of course.

There is a man in this city, however, who not only believes that suicide is preventable but that it should be prevented. He is Dr. H. M. Warren, president of the Save-a-Life League, and his organization is the result of his belief. The league has its office in a church in the heart of the city —309 West 57th street, to be exact. Here every day he sees from two to six people who are bent on taking their lives, but who have heard of the league and decide to consult an expert on the subject before taking the fatal step.

If any one is said to be an expert on suicide, Dr. Warren can. Seventeen years ago in making an address in New York he referred casually to a suicide case of the day before. The newspapers reported his address was the cause.
Dr. Warren told his audience that if the woman had come to him he might have been able to prevent the tragedy. He added: "I wish any one in the city who thinks of committing suicide, would come to talk to me about it first."

This speech brought six visitors to him. They planned to kill themselves, but they decided to hear his arguments as to why they should not.
Others followed, and gradually Dr. Warren became known in distant parts of the country as well as in New York. Now letters come to him from almost every state. Sometimes he carries on a lengthy correspondence with some individual who plans suicide, but who delays from day to day while the matter is discussed by letter.

As a result of 17 years of experience, Dr. Warren says human beings do not kill themselves because of a vague desire to get away from life.
The motive is almost always some specific trouble.
His belief is that no one can escape from troubles that way.

To the question of why an individual should not take his life if he wishes, the league gives such answers as these: Because your life in this world is regarded as a sacred trust, and you will be held accountable as to the way you keep that trust. Because you might be unsuccessful in your plan to destroy yourself and become an invalid for life, a burden to yourself and your friends. Because you should not set such a terrible example before the world, for fear others might do the same and you would be held responsible.

In this last connection, it may be said that sometimes three or four suicides have been traced back to the example of a preceding case.
But the answer is, in the past year's list of suicides there were several reported as due to gossiping tongues. A girl died because she became depressed after hobnobbing her hair; a man because he was forced to quit playing golf. A woman killed herself after missing two trains, and a man because he was afraid the end of the world was at hand. A designer became desperate trying to guess the spring styles for women. Fear of another cold winter was too much for another, and a girl took poison just to get a new thrill.

In general, however, causes are not so trivial.
The following are the most frequent: Sickness, which arouses fear of suffering, of helplessness, or of being a burden to some one; legal difficulties, where unscrupulous or inexperienced legal counsel has been employed; poverty, loneliness, remorse.
The Save-a-Life League has been able to place some people who needed medical attention in excellent hospitals, for a time, or to arrange for them to consult doctors. It has directed persons to capable counsel. Work has been found. The league does not guarantee to do any of these things, and it makes no charge for its services. It merely is there to do what it can.

Money is rarely given, because the organization has a slim treasury. In some cases, a dollar or five dollars may be given or lent to a person who can not see his way. Even 25 cents for a meal may persuade a person contemplating suicide to wait until tomorrow. Often that is all Dr. Warren asks.

"You don't want to do a thing like this hastily," he may say. "Think over what we have been saying and come in to see me in the morning." Among the facts noted is that any one who can be induced to postpone suicide most often pulls himself out of his despondency and then he gladly did not carry out his purpose. Another fact is that any one who resolves to die in a specific way will not often take his life in another way if plans go awry. For this reason the league believes that dreams should be made difficult to obtain in every state.

Dr. Warren's organization is said to be the only one of its kind in the country. It's work reduces the suicide rate some 10 or 12 per cent. so far as the outcome of cases is known, but the league's president says a much greater work could be done if funds were available. His latest plan is to open branches in Boston, St. Louis, and some California city.

Nations of the world are beginning to realize that liquor is a menace and should be suppressed at least when there is desire for decency.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE BROTHERHOOD OF CARE.
I saw a troubled man today.
A stranger's face which plainly told Some anxious care had come his way, It looked so drawn and old.

He smiled not when the jest went round And shared not in the cheer.
But kept his eyes upon the ground Like one who does not hear.

A wild canary's silver throat Poured music from a tree—
The bird which owned so sweet a note He never turned to see.

Oh, I myself have sat that way, Held fast by grief or care;
I, too, have lived my troubled day In darkness and despair.

I have been blinded to delight And deafened to the just.
And starved to sleep that night This sorrow in my breast.

And though he would not know my name, Or guess that I was there, I bared my heart to him the same And made for him a prayer.

God, help him to be strong, said I.
God, help him to be true;
In his life's hour of doubt, be nigh And bring him safely through.

Who's Who Today

BENITO MUSSOLINI.

Benito Mussolini, Italian premier, is the dominating figure in the Greco-Italian misunderstanding. He is a man of 40, has said that the dispute is not one for the league of nations to settle. That the Greek government must accede to the demands of Italy for reparation and apology for the murder of her boundary commissioners or Italy will force her to do so.

Mussolini was once forcibly expelled from Italy as a vagabond. This was when he was 20 years of age. He went to Switzerland and entered the Lausanne university. He was a brilliant student. His activities caused his banishment from Switzerland.

From Austria, too, where he was expelled, he fled to Italy. He finally returned to Italy and settling in Milan became the editor of a socialist paper. When the World War broke out he joined the army and fought at Monte Nero and Carso, being severely wounded.

Later, with the swift action, fervid force which mark all his undertakings, he crushed the Communists in Turin, the great manufacturing center of Italy. They were planning to seize the industrial machinery and run it on Bolshevik lines. Mussolini swept down on the town in an airplane, rallied the war veterans and other conservative elements and ended the Bolshevik menace.

It is said that there are 1,000,000 men ready to respond to Mussolini's call at any moment.
Not only the army but the entire intellectual community of Italy looks to him for orders.

WARTS

No day seems quite perfect without at least one letter from some one who has an intractable and, of course, more or less mysterious remedy for warts. From the small boy who believes warts come from handling toads, to the queer old "yarb doctor" who (for two bits) gives the creature a thousand remedies or charmanted to effect their disappearance, all the vagaries are given free reign in coping with this familiar condition. It generally rains now and then an occasional rainmaker, is fortunate enough to operate just before a shower. Likewise warts come and go without rhyme or reason.
A thousand remedies acquire a potency which is unfailing—until somebody tries them.

Warts may be produced by inoculation into the skin of fragments of warts from another person, but no specific germ has been determined, though a bacillus isolated from warts produces similar lesions on the skin of rabbits. Probably the greater frequency of warts on the hands of children is explained by infection; the particular susceptibility of little boys with dirty hands, or little boys of the dirty hands age, is a suspicious circumstance. Warts rarely appear on the soles, where they cause much annoyance and if carefully examined are likely to be taken for corns; these plantar warts further suggest an infectious origin, clean feet being much less popular than clean hands.
The peculiar rough cut of hypertrophied papillae at the top of a wart, surrounded perhaps by hardness or horny epidermis like that of a corn, distinguishes warts from corns generally.

"Seed warts"—which so many folk say they have—are a deep dark mystery to me, unless that is a favorite name for any and all warts.
A peculiar flat, smooth, glistening wart or a number of them commonly occur on the face of children, coming and going without apparent cause or occasion.

Remembering that warts have a way of coming and going without just cause or provocation, one good treatment is to carefully examine warts on the hands is painting the skin with tincture of iodine, one coat every four or five days for four or five times.

It is suggested that the wart be removed by the use of a sharp razor clear warts from the skin of the face or elsewhere.

"Fulguration"—sparkling with high frequency current—is a good method of causing the disappearance of one or two warts.

Freezing with solidified carbon dioxide is another valuable method in the hands only of a competent physician.

The daily application to the wart alone and not the surrounding skin of the well known corn remedy—20 grains of salicylic acid dissolved in half an ounce of flexible collodion—is quite as effective for warts as it is for corns.

Single warts on the face should be removed only by the surgeon, never treated by the amateur.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Were Overstocked With Stamps.
I am beginning to think that all inquiries are not answered by you as I have written twice before. I am inclosing a stamp for reply by return mail. Mrs. C.

Answer.—I endeavor to answer all properly signed letters pertaining to health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis nor treatment. If a stamped envelope bearing the correspondent's address has been received, when in stamps loose, but only a stamped self-addressed envelope. Do not neglect to sign the back of a letter, and if you ever, no attention can be given letters without proper signature.

How many cups of unpopped corn contains 100 calories?—W. B. A.
Answer.—There is a variable quantity, but pop corn has the same fuel or caloric value as oats and about twice the value of breakfast cereal. One cup of unpopped corn contains 100 calories; that amount popped would fill the ordinary size popcorn bucket. The average amount of corn meal sold for a bucket when in the dash of butter or oil—perhaps another 10 to 20 calories. Excellent food, for the health and the good natural stimulus to the digestive process in the intestine.

The Abrupt Theory.
My husband has TB of the lungs and has been in the sanitarium 3 months and has been taking the most care in all about 2 years. He is doing very well, but some friends advise him to try the abrupt method, and we wonder whether it would be safe for him to travel every day and to get away from his rest and quietude.

Answer.—His physician is the only one in a position to advise whether the patient must move or change travel or break his rest treatment.

Postum Unpleasant.
It is not against health regulations and what can be done about a family that keeps a possum on the third floor of a three-story apartment house on the lower two floors of which there are children?—L. I. I know it is not prohibited by any health or sanitary regulations, but it may be considered a nuisance in your town. Report the matter to the health department by letter giving your name and address.

Q. Please tell me where I can get one of the President Harding's medallions.
D. J. T.

A. The Harding medallions may be purchased from the Philadelphia National Bank, Philadelphia, Pa.

Q. Will Sir Thomas Lipton try again to lift the American Cup for yacht racing? F. J. W.

A. Sir Thomas is in this country at present and says he will challenge the 1924 for a race in 1925. It was in 1899 that he came to America for the first time with the intention of lifting the American Cup. It takes its name from the fact that it was a schooner named the "America," built by a syndicate of members of the New York Yacht club, which brought over the cup in 1851. It was presented to the New York Yacht club in 1857 to be held as a world trophy. The American entries have always defended the trophy successfully.

Q. Are there more Mongolians than negroes? W. L. J.

A. Mongolians greatly outnumber negroes in the population of the world.
The Chinese are most numerous, about 900,000,000; the yellow, 645,000, 000; black, 130,000,000; brown, 39,500, 000; and red, 28,000,000.

Q. What parts of the animal are sweetbread? T. H. L.

A. Sweetbreads is a popular term applied to certain glands of the calves used for food; these are usually the pancreas or the stomach sweetbread and the thymus, or the breast sweet-bread.

Q. When negroes have leprosy do they turn white? J. P.

A. The affected part of the body turns a bright yellow, and are quite conspicuous from the contrast to the dark skin.

Q. Where does the pearl shell com-fracture is used to make buttons and such things? T. G. S.

A. Western Australia produces about three-fourths of the world's supply of pearl shell.

Chicago Review.—With spring wheat beginning to move in volume from the west, the wheat market showed something of a downward tendency in price to-day during the early dealings. A decrease in Liverpool quotations and so additional bearish influence and so did increased hedging here and there. The absence of any aggressive selling however, does not seem to have been sufficient to bring the market down to the level of the previous week. The market was up with September $1.01 1/2 to 1.02 and Dec. $1.03 1/2 to 1.04 1/2, was lower by a cent or more in the round and then a little rally. Bearish crop estimates from Canada were instrumental in the early rally which took place. Despite unfavorable weather, corn and oats were quiet in sympathy with wheat. After opening unchanged to a lower December $1.24 to $1.25, the corn market held near to the initial price.

Subsequently unfavorable crop reports from the United States brought about a material upturn in values. The loss was unsettled, ranging from 1/4 to 1/2 cent to 2 1/2 cents. Dec. 6 1/2 to 7 1/2. Oats started unchanged to 1/4 up, to 30 1/2 but later showed slight losses. Revisions were ineffective with prices nominally about unchanged.
